Well, who would have thought it! Two games in one afternoon from the leaders, and one of them a two-inning game. Why, it is just "carrying on" and the meek and lowly "Clams" who were looked upon as easy, have at last arisen in their might, and taught the "Blue Birds" that they were mistaken in looking upon them with disdain, and notwithstanding their opinion of their own importance, and the side remarks, and sarcastic and ironical expressions in reference to the softness of the "Clams," they found out, and that, too, with interest, that there was another team in the league, and that team was the Norfolk.

It is aggravating to calculate that your hen will hatch out just as many chickens as you put eggs under her, but when the time comes for the little chicks to peep out of the shell to find that only a small part of your calculation materialized. Just so with Richmond. They had no other idea but that of taking two out of the three games, and possibly three, and the result is astonishing to them, and great is the grief thereof in Richmond.

The first game started with Gillen and Kelly as the battery for the visitors and McPartlin and Cote for the home team. Both clubs were full of "kinger" and from general appearance were in the pink of condition. Both teams drew blanks for six straight innings. McPartlin up to this time only allowing the Richmond three hits, while the Norfolk had succeeded in finding Gillen for only four hits.

Both pitchers were doing excellent work and it was nip and tuck between them for the mastery. The "Clams" succeeded in scoring their first run in the seventh on error of Kain and singles by McInnis and O'Hagan. The "rooters" were wild, so to speak, and they set up a mighty shout, "Shut 'em out, Pop," "Hold 'em down, McPartlin," and other familiar expressions were heard, and from the way the home boys were playing it looked very much as if they would do just what the "cranks" advised them to do.

In Richmond's half of the seventh, after two men were out, Bradley hit a fly ball to right field close to the foul line, which bounded among the carriages, and before Colliflower could field the ball he had made the circuit of the bases. Then there wasn't so much joy over this, and some of the "fans" began to let their faces grow long.

But there was no use of feeling "blue" for the visitors never had the least chance of making another run and just fell down in one, two three order for the remaining five innings. Norfolk made five runs in the twelfth inning. Here is how it was done. McInnis walked on four balls; O'Hagan made a pretty sacrifice, Corcoran hit a high fly to left field along the foul line. Smith made a good run, for it got partially under it, but dropped the ball, thereby making an error.

It was rather a hard chance, but it was an error just the same. Tate hit a "beaut" over second base and McInnis scored. Thornton flew out to Bradley. Chances had been been prevented to retire the side, with only McInnis scoring. Geier got a hit. Corcoran and Tate scored. Colliflower hit one among the carriages for a "home," sending Geier ahead of him. Cote sent a "dandy" grounder for one bag, but died on first, as McPartlin went out on a fly to left field.

Five men had crossed the plate, and notwithstanding the fact that four hits were made, one of them being a "home," not one of them was an earned run, from the fact that chances had been presented to retire the side before a man had scored save McInnis, who was given his base on balls.

The Inquest Will Be Held at the Schoolhouse in Huntersville This Morning at 9 O'clock. Witnesses Summoned to Appear in the Case.

Justice Hawks, who is conducting the investigation to ascertain the responsibility for the accident on the Ocean View railroad, which caused the death of the two young men, Arthur Gatewood and Willie Murdaugh, was at his office in Huntersville yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock ready to go ahead with the examination.

Mr. Robert Tunstall, of the firm of Tunstall & Thom, has been engaged as counsel for the railroad.

All of the gentlemen who compose the jury were on hand at the appointed hour. It was ascertained that a number of witnesses thought to be important were absent, and after a consultation with Capt. Marshall and Mr. Tunstall, Justice Hawks announced that the investigation would be postponed till this morning at 9 o'clock at the Huntersville schoolhouse.

Capt. Marshall proposed that the jury meet at the Courthouse in Portsmouth, but obstinate objection was made by a number of them and the schoolhouse was selected as the place.

The following witnesses have been summoned to appear this morning: F. E. Moore, George A. Stevens, Dr. R. L. Barrett, T. P. S. Carey, W. M. Harman, Samuel Forbes, C. Mitchell, Henry Johnson, A. J. Chalmers, W. B. Brown, Wm. Sampson, J. T. Peale, Dr. George D. Levy, McD. L. Wrenn.

Every One Knows.

To-day the danger of feeding babies on ordinary cow's milk, however fresh. It is full of properties injurious to the delicate organization of an infant. And it is especially so in the summer. In cities where the milk is always of greater or less age, it will soon forfeit its best nourishment to microbes unless sterilized.

The absolute purity of the milk is essential and positively necessary for your infant's welfare. To obtain pure milk, sterilizing is required; your physician will tell you so.

The Arnold sterilizer is the simplest and best. Any one can operate it, and its price is in the reach of all. Sold in Norfolk by John W. Burrow, the druggist, Main street.

A Talk About Blankets Selling in Hot Weather.

Levy Bros., 174 Main street, advertised a special sale of blankets in Sunday papers. There are still a good many left which will be run for the balance of the week at same special low prices as advertised. Supply yourselves now while you can buy at about half the price charged elsewhere.
